Chairperson's Welcome

MIDSUMMA '90 is a festival designed to involve, excite and connect Melbourne's gay community. Last year MIDSUMMA launched a program that gave a glimpse of our strength, diversity and pride. Now we are aiming to build even greater networks and give a more comprehensive view of gay Melbourne.

In Victoria we lack the political history of street fighting that led to Mardi Gras. Our community is not concentrated geographically nor does it have a long history of public display. However we have been able to achieve remarkable progress through quiet cooperation and plain hard work.

Whilst the HIV virus may have cast a pall over our community, we have responded and responded well. Rather than sit back and wait for some backlash, we have developed a strong and legitimate profile. More and more members of the heterosexual community (families, workmates, neighbours, friends) now know more about us than ever before. They are starting to recognise and acknowledge the enormous social contributions made by members of the gay community - for example, the fact that we provide disproportionately more teachers, carers, healers, creative and cultural workers.

The MIDSUMMA Festival aims to show off these strengths and abilities both to ourselves and our friends. Whether it be participation in athletic events, the theatre and art programs, the car rally, drag bings or the picnic in the park - MIDSUMMA holds the promise - now it's up to you to enjoy.

I urge you to seek out the program put together for the Lesbian-Festival 1990. A number of events are open to the public and increasing interaction between Melbourne's gay male and lesbian communities can only be to our mutual benefit. Thank you to all our Festival sponsors and a special thank you to the members of the MIDSUMMA 250 Club who are making a personal commitment to an ongoing gay community festival in Melbourne.

Putting MIDSUMMA together has been a long process but I know the next 10 days and nights will be worth it as Melbourne's gay community puts on a dazzling kaleidoscope of fun and festival. Be safe and enjoy.
